SIXTY YEARS OF HOME ECONOMICS

The Faculty of Home Economics, although it was not a Faculty at the time, accepted its first students sixty years ago this fall. Like so many other professions, home economics has changed markedly in those sixty years, but in the opinion of Doris Badir, Dean of the Faculty of Home Economics, those changes seem to have brought it full circle.

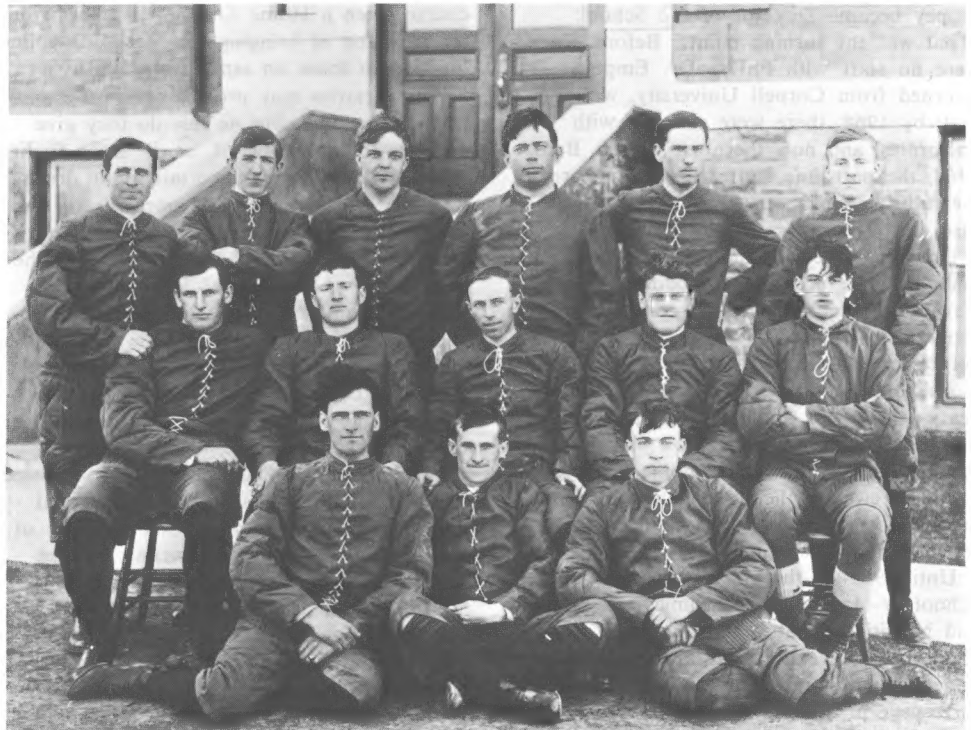

"Originally," she said, "home economics was the application of science to improve the quality of daily life. But moving into a University setting, home economists began to shy away from making references to daily living, because it wasn't 'academic.' To justify their applied science, they began to emphasize their specialization."

As the Depression years set in, home economics entered the area of "making do, conserving, and preserving, of remodelling kitchens and clothes, activities that might now be classed as conservation." The focus had changed from people to things. "You remodelled your kitchen not for your family but to brighten your supposedly drab existence as a housewife." From this developed an interest in appliances and the building of consumer habits.

Now, according to Dean Badir and Associate Dean Betty Crown, the emphasis has returned to the improvement of daily life and the application of those special disciplines that previously were so stressed for their own sake to solving the problems of daily living. This philosophy was set down and adopted by the Faculty of Home Economics in 1975, when it approved a definition of home economics as "a study of the laws, conditions, principles and ideals concerned with people's immediate physical environment, and their nature as social beings, and especially the relationship between the two for the purpose of improving the quality of people's daily lives."

This definition was part of a detailed statement of philosophy and objectives adopted by the Faculty in 1975. An Aims and Objectives Committee was struck that year by Beth Empey, who was Director at that time (the School of Household Economics became a Faculty and the Director a Dean soon afterwards). This Committee was instructed to "prepare a statement on philosophy and objectives for the School of Household Economics which reflects the priorities to be assigned current and prospective academic activities. . . ." Such a review of priorities, on a periodic basis, was recommended for all faculties in the University Priorities Committee report presented to the Board of Governors this spring—three years after the Home Economics committee met to consider its priorities.

However, if Home Economics has changed on this campus through its sixty years here, the greatest changes, according to Dean Badir, have taken place since 1959, when Beth Empey became Director of the School: "That was the turning point." Before, there were no staff with PhDs—Dr. Empey, returned from Cornell University, was the first; by 1968, there were six staff with doctorates, and now there are fifteen. Before 1968, the part-time staff still outnumbered the full-time staff; now that is no longer the case.

Dr. Empey set about upgrading the undergraduate program, introducing a research orientation and a graduate program in Foods and Nutrition, and, before long, obtaining a separate building for Household Economics. During Dr. Empey's years as Director and then Dean, "the immense change in focus took place from the elemental approach of home economics to the renewed application of these elements to daily life, and the program changed to reflect that philosophy."

Until 1965-66, the main emphasis of the School of Household Economics was Foods and Nutrition. That year, a program in Clothing and Textiles was introduced, giving undergraduate students the option of three three-year programs: General, Foods and Nutrition, and Clothing and Textiles.

In 1970, the undergraduate program was changed from three to four years, the General program was deleted, and a Family Studies program introduced. "After all, if we were going to interest ourselves in problem-solving for daily living, we would need to understand the dynamics of the family."

While having three seemingly separate programs of study can breed its own division of the Faculty into discrete disciplines, in fact the students have ample options to make their program as general or specialized as they choose. Moreover, all students can take a course given a Home Economics label, with the intention of bringing the special disciplines together to focus on aspects of daily living.

Anniversaries may provide special reasons for looking back, but no less do they give a desire to look forward, or, in Dean Badir's words, "it is fair enough to talk about dreams."

Along with a continued emphasis on the role of home economists in dealing with "the dailyness of life," Dean Badir sees the application of the special knowledge of home economists in various fields to such areas as consumer studies, both "helping the consumer cope with the marketplace" and studying "consumption habits and relating them to the world's resources." She sees this as an area for developing a future master's program. She also sees an increased role for home economists in international development, "for improving the quality of life in underdeveloped countries, not just improving their gross national product."

Moreover, she sees home economists increasingly working as a team, with each other and with other helping professions. To accomplish this, she sees these various groups training as teams: "allowing medical students and dietetics students, for example, to participate jointly in their clinical experience—to some extent this is happening already, but there is still a long way to go."

Home Economics is celebrating its sixtieth anniversary with a day-long symposium, on Saturday, 21 October, Homecoming Weekend, featuring three noted alumnae. Wendy Sanford, who graduated in 1956, will speak on "Moving to Metric"; Ms. Sanford, Home Economics Manager at Corning Glass Works of Canada Ltd., is Chairman of the Consumer, Home Economics, and Retail Trade Sector of the Metric Commission of Canada. Patricia Arkinstall Wakefield, Director of Apparel Merchandizing for the Celanese Fibres Marketing Company in New York, will speak on "Textile Directions," and Mary Morrison, who graduated in 1949, will speak on "Nutrition Outreach—Research and Service." Dr. Morrison is Professor in the Division of Nutritional Sciences in the College of Human Ecology at Cornell University.

All lectures will be held in the Students' Union Building Theatre. In addition, there will be a special luncheon at the Faculty Club to honor former Dean Beth Empey, who retired this spring, and an open house in the three buildings in which Home Economics divisions are located will be held from 3:30 to 5 p.m.

The fee for the symposium/celebration is $15, including the lunch. Additional information and registration forms can be obtained from Louise Mason at the Faculty of Home Economics, 432-5997.

FORMER DEAN OF HOME ECONOMICS TO BE HONORED

On 30 June of this year, the sixtieth anniversary of the Faculty of Home Economics at the University of Alberta, Beth Empey, Dean of the Faculty from 1959 until 1976, retired. Concurrent with its celebration of its sixtieth anniversary this fall, the Faculty of Home Economics will be honoring its former Dean.

The Faculty is establishing the Dr. Elizabeth Empey Visiting Lectureship in Home Economics to commemorate Dr. Empey's contribution to the University and to her own profession. Details of the Lectureship will be announced at a special luncheon in Dr. Empey's honor on Saturday, 21 October, during the Faculty's Sixtieth Anniversary Celebration.

Under the special lectureship, an outstanding speaker would be invited each year to deliver a public lecture on a topic related to the discipline of Home Economics. To establish the lectureship and make it an annual event, it will be necessary to collect $20,000, which would be invested in the University's endowment pool. Contributions, designated for the Dr. Elizabeth Empey Lectureship in Home Economics, can be made payable to the University of Alberta and directed to Mr. L. Howell, Special Funds, Comptroller's Office, University of Alberta, Edmonton, Alberta, T6G 2M7.

A coffee party will also be held in Dr. Empey's honor on Thursday afternoon, 19 October, from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m., in the Faculty Club upstairs lounge. Members of the University community are cordially invited to participate. The cost is $3.00 per person, payable in advance by 16 October to Thelma Dennis, Associate Professor of Home Economics, at 301A Printing Services Building. (It would be helpful if those planning to attend could indicate their approximate time of attendance.)

TURNING LEAD TO GOLD AND OTHER MEDIAEVAL PURSUITS

The Guild for Mediaeval and Renaissance Studies, which has been meeting regularly on campus since 1960, has announced its lecture series for 1978-79.

The first lecture will be less a lecture than a practical demonstration, in which James A. Plambeck, of the Department of Chemistry, will attempt to turn lead into gold (or vice-versa, as may be the case). His presentation, titled "Alchemy—Principles and Practice," will begin at 8:15 p.m. in 3-19 Humanities Centre, on Thursday, 26 October.

Other lecturers in this year's series will be Jean Fortier (Lettres Classiques, à la Faculté Saint-Jean), on "The Golden Number and Notre Dame Cathedral," on 23 November; Michael C. Brown (Geography), on "The Relevance of Caves," on 18 January; and Stephen Scobie (English), on "A Fifteenth Century Scottish Poet: Robert Henryson's Testament of Cresseid," on 15 February.

On 15 March, the Collegium Musicum of the Department of Music, directed by Larry Cook, will present a program of early music.

All lectures and the music program will be presented at 8:15 p.m. in 3-19 Humanities Centre. Admission is free.

The Guild for Mediaeval and Renaissance Studies was formed by a group of professors and other interested persons to promote better communications among the various arts and sciences. Papers are presented by individuals from a variety of disciplines, but always with a focus on man and his universe. Topics have ranged from owls in mediaeval iconography to the concept of madness in the middle ages to topics in early science. The Guild has approximately fifty members.

Membership in the Guild is open to everyone who is interested, at a cost of $2.50 per year. Memberships may be obtained by contacting Leni Honsaker, Department of Botany, at 432-5523.

Speculations as to the number of Guild members who can dance on the head of a pin should be addressed to Olive P. Dickson, of the Department of History, who is Alderman of the Guild for Mediaeval and Renaissance Studies this year.

DEPARTMENT OF MUSIC RECEIVES TRUST FUND

Fall has turned into an eventful season for the University's Department of Music. Convocation Hall, home for the majority of the Department's concerts, was officially re-opened recently and, on 25 September, the Department was the recipient of a grant from the Siemens String Development Trust Fund.

Dr. Peter von Siemens, Chairman of the Board of Directors of Siemens AG, one of the world's leading electrical engineering companies with head offices in Munich and Berlin, presented a letter of commitment to University President Dr. Harry Gunning. Under the terms of the Trust Fund, the Department will receive $10,000 per year for the next five years. The money, said Professor Brian Harris, Acting Chairman of the Department, will be used for string development, that is, teaching and playing. It may also go toward the establishment of scholarships for deserving students and the funding of various seminars and workshops, he said.

"We look forward to the success borne by careful and methodical application of the grant," Dr. von Siemens said. He had gained knowledge of the development of the Department of Music through his friendship with Pianist Helmut Brauss.

Dr. von Siemens, an accomplished violinist, was in the company of his wife Julia and William Waite of Montreal, a Siemens AG representative.

Hanns Gert Rademacher, Vice-Consul, Federal Republic of Germany; and Robert Cook, Director of Performing Arts, Alberta Culture, were also present, as was Dr. Charles Moore, Associate Dean of the Faculty of Arts.

After expressing the University's gratitude for the grant. President Gunning urged Dr. von Siemens to visit the University later to determine for himself just how the grant was benefiting the Department of Music.

Prior to the presentation, the University of Alberta String Quartet, assisted by Helmut Brauss, performed the First Movement of Brahms's Piano Quintet in F Minor.

RIEL PROJECT RECEIVES MAJOR GRANT

On 20 October the University will launch the Riel Project, a five-year undertaking which involves publication of the complete writings of Louis Riel. The finished product will be known as Louis Riel Ecrits Complets: Edition Critique/Collected Papers of Louis Riel, Critical Edition.

To inaugurate the project, an informal conference with the editors and Riel scholars will be held Friday, 20 October, beginning at 9 a.m. in room B-56 of the Henry Marshall Tory Building. The conference is open to all interested persons and will feature the presentation of papers by J.E. Foster, Associate Professor of History, University of Alberta; Frits Pannekoek, Director of Research for the Prairie Region of Parks Canada; Ray Huel, University of Lethbridge; and Ken Hatt, Carleton University. A panel discussion on the problems inherent in the project will also be conducted.

The project evolved from groundwork laid in 1975 by a steering committee, the Western Canadiana Publications Project Committee. In February, 1976, the committee became a University of Alberta President's Committee.

With D.A. Jackel, Associate Professor of English as chairman, the committee approached the Canada Council regarding a major editorial grant to publish assorted Western Canadian materials. After being informed that such grants applied to specific areas of work rather than to wide-ranging programs, the committee placed priority on the writings of Louis Riel. A detailed application for a grant was drawn up following the committee's consultations with a number of University offices including Computing Services, the Libraries, the Graduate Students' Association, and the Research Grants Office within the Faculty of Graduate Studies and Research.

The application was made in October 1976. Tentative acceptance by the Canada Council was followed by an on-site visit of a team of scholars from the Council and further talks between the Council and the University. When final approval was given, the University became the recipient of the first major editorial grant to a Western Canadian university. The amount of the grant is $528,623.

The Riel Projects lists the University of Alberta as the sponsoring institute and the University of Calgary, Sherbrooke University, and Mt. Allison University as supporting institutes.

This University is the cynosure of the project; the publisher will be the University of Alberta Press and the University's Computing Services will be used extensively.

The principal scholars are G.F.G. Stanley, Professor Emeritus, Mt. Allison University, Chief Editor; Thomas Flanagan, University of Calgary, Deputy Editor; Glen Campbell, University of Calgary, Volume Editor; Gilles Martel, Sherbrooke University, Volume Editor; and as Associate Editors, J.E. Foster and Roger Motut, both of this University; and Douglas Lochhead, Mt. Allison University.

Five volumes containing Riel's letters, poetry, diaries, and miscellaneous prose writings are scheduled to be in draft form in 1983. According to Dr. Foster, a chronological basis will likely be followed. He said that material survives from Riel's student days in Montreal in the 1860s. A different editor will write an introduction to each volume and Dr. Stanley will write a general introduction.

The project will not be without problems. For example, some of the material survives only in "letters to the editor" form and the scholars may find it difficult to determine the extent of any editorial changes. Also, there may be four copies of a Riel letter and a decision on which one to be published will have to be made. About eighty percent of Riel's writing is in French and Dr. Foster said the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council (formerly the Canada Council) has a policy of not paying for translation work. The scholars hope to locate other sources of funds to effect a full translation.

"Our prime readership will be research scholars but if the writings are translated we see a larger market in Western Canada for the volumes," Dr. Forest said.

In any event, the Riel Project will begin 20 October and, in the coming months, "Rieliana" may well become a campus catchword.

UNIVERSITY OF ALBERTA CREDIT UNION

The University of Alberta Credit Union, serving staff and students at this institution, was originally established on campus as a cooperative venture in 1949 with offices in the basement of the Dentistry-Pharmacy Building. Recently, by a decision of its Board of Directors, the Credit Union expanded its operations to offer a full range of financial services to members of the University community with the result that, in the current calendar year, the assets and the memberships have more than doubled. With the expansion came a need for suitable accommodation, so the University's Board of Governors has leased to the Credit Union quarters in the HUB Mall formerly occupied by a branch of the Royal Bank of Canada. Seen in the accompanying photograph of the official opening of the new offices at 89 112 Street, HUB Mall, are (left to right) Mel Poole, Associate Vice-President (Finance and Administration), Walter Chernenki, President of The University of Alberta Credit Union, and Baldur Johnson, General Manager of the Credit Union Central.

For more information concerning the services offered by the Credit Union to staff and students, and the payroll deduction plan, contact Al Summers, Manager, The University of Alberta Credit Union, telephone 432-3256.

SENATE

The first meeting of the University Senate for fall term was held on Friday, 29 September. The following items were among those discussed.

New Members

The following new members were introduced and welcomed: Peter Czartoryski, Ed Ewasiuk, Ron Hawkes, Mary Lobay, Frank Spragins, Marguerite Trussler, and Theresa Wildcat, as public members elected by Senate; Hasan Danial and Terry Haberman, as members appointed by the Minister of Advanced Education and Manpower; Bill Pidruchney, as a representative of the University's Board of Governors; and Harry Chomik, as a representative of the Alumni Association.

Executive Committee Report

The Executive Committee reported the slate of members of the Nominating Committee for 1978-79: Georgie Brooks (Chairman), Jean B. Forest (Chancellor, ex officio), Sharon Bell, Joyce Kurie, Gerry Lock, Jean McBean, Patricia Meekison, Alexandra Munn, W.F.M. Newson, and Bill Stewart.

The Committee also reported that since the last meeting of Senate in April, it had named nine members to serve on a Task Force on Children and Others with Learning Disabilities. Senate ratified the Executive Committee's choice. The members of the Task Force are: Elly DeJongh, Betty Finch, Ethel Fried, Gerry Lock, and Marguerite Trussler, Senate members; and John Brosseau, of the Edmonton Separate School Board; Earl Mansfield, of Manpower Services in the Alberta Department of Advanced Education and Manpower; Cheryl Roemer, of the Faculty of Nursing; and Susan Therrien, of the Faculty of Education.

The Executive Committee further reported that the following members of Senate were serving on the University's Committee to Search for a President: Jean Forest (Chancellor), Joe Kandler, Dorothy Richardson, and Alexandra Munn.

The Executive also reported that the Senate had been invited to appoint lay Senate members as observers on the faculty councils of all quota faculties.

Nominating Committee

The Nominating Committee announced the members of the Executive Committee for 1978-79: Jean B. Forest (Chairman, Chancellor, ex officio), Georgie Brooks, Harry Gunning (President, ex officio), Ethel Fried, Yaro Roslak, Stephen Kushner, and Klaus Weiher.

It was noted that the Executive Committee had been reduced in size compared with those in the recent past, to bring it in line with the Universities Act, which stipulates that the Senate Executive Committee consist of a chairman plus six other members of Senate. Senate will be proposing an amendment to the Universities Act to the government, to enlarge the size of the Executive Committee. Senate approved the slate of members proposed for the Executive Committee.

Senate also approved the appointment of members to serve on the following committees for 1978-79:

Honorary Degrees Committee: Jean B. Forest (Chairman, Chancellor, ex officio), Harry Gunning (President, ex officio), Molly Basaraba, George Cormack, Bob Edgar, Ed Ewasiuk, Tema Frank, Ronald Hawkes, Joseph Kandler, Frank Kozar, Ed Lewis, Mary Lobay, John McDougall, Thelma Scambler, Vern Wishart, and W.H. Worth.
Emil Skarin Fund Committee: Burton Smith (Chairman), Jean B. Forest (Chancellor, ex officio), George Baldwin (ex officio), Elna Clarke (ex officio), Hazel Braithwaite, Dean Olmstead, and Mary-Jane Shaw.

Senate representatives were also approved for the following bodies:

Faculty of Extension Council: Harry Chomik, Roy Everest, Helen Verdin, and Theresa Wildcat.

Academic Development Committee: Peter Czartoryski.

Galbraith Award in Journalism: Mary-Jane Shaw.

University of Alberta Seventy-Fifth Anniversary Committee: Mary Lobay.

Senate also approved the recommendation of the Nominating Committee that in future the Executive Committee invite the Nominating Committee to submit suggestions when membership in task forces and ad hoc committees is decided.

Honorary Degrees Committee

The Honorary Degrees Committee announced that at Fall Convocation, to be held on Saturday, 25 November, honorary Doctor of Laws degrees will be presented to Hans Selye and Frank Spragins.

Hans Selye, an authority on stress in humans, is Professor Emeritus at the University of Montreal and founder of the International Institute of Stress in Montreal. His concept of stress has led to new methods of treatment, through the discovery that hormones participate in the development of many degenerative diseases, such as coronary thrombosis, brain hemorrhage, hardening of the arteries, high blood pressure, kidney failure, arthritis, peptic ulcers, even cancer. His current research involves devising a code of behavior based on the laws governing the body's stress resistance in dealing with personal, interpersonal, and group problems.

Frank Spragins, as the first President of Chancellor Forest and M. Totman, Acting Executive Officer, at the first meeting of the Senate in 1978-79.

Synchrude Canada Ltd., was instrumental in developing the first industrial research laboratory in Canada solely devoted to the Alberta oil sands. Establishing this laboratory in Edmonton led to the growth of the basic research necessary to the long-term development of the sands. Mr. Spragins served as Chairman of the Board of Synchrude from 1975 until his retirement in January of this year. He is now a member of the Alberta Oil Sands Technology and Research Authority, a group responsible for disbursing public funds for appropriate heavy oil research projects. Mr. Spragins is also a new member of the University Senate.

The installation of Jean Forest as Chancellor of the University will also take place at Fall Convocation.

Student Finance

Senate heard representations from both the Alberta Student Finance Board and from the Students' Union Vice-President (External).

Fred Hemingway, Administrator of the Alberta Student Finance Board, explained the operation of the Board and the two loan plans, the Canada Student Loans Plan, which can provide up to $1,800 in any one year, and the Alberta Student Assistance Program, which can provide up to $2,500 per year. In both cases the loans are intended "to supplement, not replace," the students' own financial resources and those of his or her immediate family. Scales are set requiring parental contributions to a student's education depending on the family's income, and other scales indicate savings requirements for students from summer employment. Loan remissions are also provided for at rates of fifty percent for a student's first year, forty percent for the second year, and twenty-five percent for subsequent years.

Mr. Hemingway indicated that exceptions for special circumstances were possible and that assistance could be given through the Board's counselling services and through its review and appeals system. He also pointed out that in 1977-78, 14,500 students in Alberta were assisted through the loan plans administered through the Student Finance Board, $18,000,000 was lent through the Canada Student Loans Plan (federal funds), $5,500,000 through the Alberta Student Assistance Program (provincial funds), and $6,000,000 was shared by both levels of government as remissions.

Dr. Gunning pointed out that the loan plans applied only to Canadian citizens or permanent residents, not to visa students. Dependent students are considered residents of the provinces in which their parents live; independent students are considered residents of the province where they last spent twelve months as non-post-secondary students.

Stephen Kushner, Vice-President (External) of the Students' Union, discussed some of the problems, from the students' perspective, with the student loans programs. One source of difficulties is the question of dependence and required contributions from parents: if students do not meet the Finance Board's definition of independence, their parents must either make a specified financial contribution to their post-secondary education or sign a statement that they will not give any such support. Since individuals legally become adults at the age of eighteen, the Students' Union Vice-President saw these conditions as "gross discrimination against legal adults on the basis of age."

Further problems related to the administration of the loans themselves. Because a student's total remission and total indebtedness is not calculated until his or her program is completed, there is little indication of the amount of the debt the student will have undertaken. Mr. Kushner pointed out that students with the least financial resources of necessity will have the largest indebtedness, and that this potential indebtedness would act as a deterrent to these students attending post-secondary institutions.

Mr. Kushner asked whether the loans system was working in the students' best interests and called for a program "that has enough funding so that it can treat all students equally."

Senate broke into small discussion groups to consider questions related to student finance. When it reconvened, Senate felt that it had not had adequate time to consider the problems related to student finance, and referred the matter to the Executive Committee for further consideration.

Other Matters

University Priorities Committee. The Senate heard a digest of the University Priorities Committee report, prepared by a small sub-committee of Senate. Senate member Yaro Roslak commented that the recommendations appeared to be introducing planning and controls that he "thought must already be in existence at the University." While Senate was agreed that it should consider the Priorities Committee Report in detail, it noted that since the Board of Governors wished to consider the recommendations in November, there was not really time for the Senate to consider it and report to the Board and General Faculties Council. Therefore, the report was received as information.

Committee to Review the Role of the Executive and of the Executive Officer. The Committee to Review the Role of the Executive and of the Executive Officer presented its report to Senate. It recommended on the structure and duties of the Executive Committee and also proposed a change to the Universities Act, that the Executive should consist of "no less than" six members in addition to the chairman (at present, the composition is limited to six members). The committee further recommended a job description, selection procedures, and employment conditions for the Executive Officer. It also recommended that the Executive Officer be appointed for a period of two years, renewable by the Senate up to a maximum of two further terms.

Senate approved the recommendations of the Committee and moved that the Board be approached to permit the Senate the right to employ personnel and that the President be approached to delegate to the Senate the power to suspend and dismiss personnel. Faculty of Agriculture and Forestry. Dean Bowland of the Faculty of Agriculture and Forestry made a presentation to Senate on the work of his faculty. This is part of a series of presentations by faculties to the Senate to acquaint the members of Senate with the work of the University.

NOTICES

Notices must reach the Editor by 9 a.m. the Thursday prior to publication. Written notification is necessary. Notices should be sent to Folio Notices, 423 Athabasca Hall.

Corrigendum

The list of staff promotions, received from the Associate Vice-President (Academic Administration) and printed in the Folio of 28 September 1978, contained two errors: C. Dimic, Romance Languages, was promoted to Professor; the promotion was credited erroneously to M.V. Dimic, who has been a Full Professor for several years in the Department of Comparative Literature. Also, the promotion of I.D. Forrest of the Faculty of Nursing to the rank of Assistant Professor was not noted.

Linguistic Conference

The Department of Linguistics will be hosting a conference, "Perspectives in experimental Linguistics," on 13 and 14 October. All talks will be given in 769 General Services Building. For further information, telephone 432-4970.

Curriculum Seminar Series

Barry MacDonald, Deputy Director of the Centre for Applied Research in Education at the University of East Anglia, will be Visiting Scholar on 17 and 19 October at the first of the Faculty of Education's Curriculum Seminar Series for 1978-79. Dr. MacDonald's presentations will focus on educational evaluation and inquiry. Dr. MacDonald has directed three substantial evaluation studies in the United Kingdom during the past ten years. He is currently studying the relationship between research and evaluation under the sponsorship of the Social Science Research Council. Members of the University community are invited to attend, and copies of Dr. MacDonald's schedule can be obtained by telephoning 432-5865 or 432-3665.

Replacement of Academic Representative on Board of Governors

The term of Mary Spencer as one of the two representatives of the academic staff on the Board of Governors expires in January 1979. In accordance with procedures approved by General Faculties Council, each faculty has been requested to submit nominations for a replacement for Dr. Spencer in number up to that provided for the faculty in election of members to General Faculties Council. In addition to the nominees submitted from the faculties, the name of any full-time member of the academic staff must be added to the list of nominees where the name is lodged with the Secretary by the appointed date and supported by the signature of five other members of the full-time academic staff.

Nominations should be submitted to M.M. McCaughan, Secretary to the General Faculties Council, by 20 October 1978.

Science Dining Club

The Science Dining Club will meet at 6 p.m. on Thursday, 19 October. David Cass of the Department of Botany will speak on "Strategy and recognition of plant sex." The talk, followed by dinner, will take place in the Saskatchewan Room of the Faculty Club. Reservations should be made by 17 October with Mrs. P. Grant, Faculty of Science, telephone 432-4757.

Committee to review structure and functions of the Office of the Registrar

Myer Horowitz, Vice-President, has named a committee of three persons to review and make recommendations on the structure and functions of the Office of the Registrar. The Committee consists of K.B. Newbound, Dean of Science (Chairman); D.R. Badir, Dean of Home Economics; and E.A. Holdaway, Director of Institutional Research and Planning. Liaison with the Registrar's Office will be maintained through Brian Silzer, Assistant Registrar.

The Committee will look at the division of responsibilities between the Office of the Registrar and the Faculty Offices in such matters as admission and transfers, student records, high school liaison, and the granting of degrees. It will consider the relationship between the Office of the Registrar and the Office of Administrative Systems in the development and operation of the student records system and, in general, the way in which various responsibilities are assigned to the Registrar by delegation from General Faculties Council, the Board of Governors, and the University Administration.

It is expected that the Committee will make its final report by the end of January 1979, so that any resulting decisions are available to a selection committee for a new Registrar.
